

112111 - Can the basmalah be recited in the middle of a surah?

the question

Some of the jurists say that reciting the basmalah in the middle of a surah is mustahabb, because the Prophet (blessings and peace of Allah be upon him) said: "Every important matter that does not start with 'Bismillah ir-Rahman ir-Rahim (in the name of Allah, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful),' is devoid of blessings." Is it recommended, or is it not prescribed?

Detailed answer

Praise be to Allah.

The correct view is that if a person recites the basmalah when beginning his reading of Quran in the middle of a surah, that is not recommended, because Allah says in His Book (interpretation of the meaning):

{When you recite the Quran, seek refuge with Allah from the accursed Shaytan} [An-Nahl 16:98].

He did not instruct us to say anything else. Therefore so long as there is a specific text concerning the matter which states that what is required from the one who wants to read Quran is to seek refuge with Allah from the accursed Shaytan, this text makes specific what is mentioned in general terms in the hadith, "Every important matter that does not start with 'Bismillah ir-Rahman ir-Rahim (in the name of Allah, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful), is devoid of blessings." End quote.
